

Passionate Attachments: The Essential But Fragile Nature of Love

Price: $45.00

Short Description

This program journeys into theories of love, attachment, failure, and erotic excitement.

Description

"What are passionate attachments? Why are they fragile? Most of us feel that we know a lot about love, perhaps even experts on it. The field of mental health has a great deal of expertise in the failures of love. We have found what creates many of the problems our patients have. {module [170]}"

Objectives

After completion of this program listeners will be able to:

1. Explain the how social intimacy relates with female development.
2. Discuss the "overall structure of erotic excitement."
3. Identify the center of erotic excitement original traumas.
4. Recognize the role of 'mirroring' in infants, developing child and adults.

Specification

Conference Recordings
format	mp3 audio
Presenter(s)	Martha Kirkpatrick, Althea Horner, Robert Stroller, Bruno Bettelheim, Joan Lang
Series	Legacy, Relationship Therapy
Time	11 Hours
Year	1985